

Description

The GCH-1620-V2 is a professional-grade heat press machine designed for precision, efficiency, and high-volume production. Featuring an advanced swing-away mechanism and Pressure Gauge, this machine ensures flawless heat transfers on garments, accessories, and flat substrates. Ideal for commercial printers, sublimation studios, and garment decorators, the GCH-1620-V2 delivers consistent, vibrant results with every use.

Feature

Precision Pressure Control: Equipped with a built-in pressure gauge, this heat press allows precise control over the pressure applied during the transfer process, ensuring consistent results and high-quality prints across various materials.

Large Swing Design: Allowing the heat platen to swing out of the way for safe and easy material placement. This design prevents accidental burns and ensures efficient handling during operation.

Versatile Heat Transfer Range: With its increased heat platen size, the GCH-1620 caters to a broader spectrum of transfer needs. From T-shirts to puzzles, mouse pads, and more, this heat press delivers consistent and high-quality results across various materials.

Enhanced Handling with Dual Handles: Equipped with a secondary handle in addition to the main swing handle, offering greater control and stability during operation. This thoughtful design reduces user fatigue and ensures smoother, more precise platen movement.
